FEDERAL LABORATORY CONSORTIUM FOR TECHNOLOGY TRANSFER

FLC advancing federal research and technology

The Federal Laboratory Consortium for Technology Transfer (FLC) and the National Technical Information Service (NTIS) continuously collaborate on the process of Federal Technology Transfer.

The FLC is the nationwide network of federal laboratories that provides the forum to develop strategies and opportunities for linking laboratory mission technologies and expertise with the marketplace. The FLC consists of more than 250 federal laboratories.

As an agency of the U.S. Department of Commerce, the NTIS mission is to provide for the acquisition, archiving and dissemination of technological, scientific, and engineering information. Much of this permanent repository of information is the result of research conducted by federal laboratories that are members of the FLC. The collaborative effort of the FLC and NTIS ensures the perpetual availability of this vital research to American businesses and industries.

PB2012104389Front-of-Package Nutrition Rating Systems and Symbols:
Promoting Healthier Choices.

Institute of Medicine, Washington, DC. Food and Nutrition Board.

“There is a long and rich history of government public health efforts to educate and inform the public about nutrition and healthy eating. The first daily food guide, published in 1916, paved the way for a host of scientific documents, reports, brochures, symbols, and educational campaigns, including the Basic Seven Foods, the Food Guide Pyramid, and the Nutrition Facts panel. As a result of efforts such as these, Americans today have access to more information about nutrition than any previous generation. And yet the nation is facing a crisis of obesity and diet-related chronic diseases. Although there are many factors that influence what and how Americans eat, it is clear that there is a disconnect between dietary recommendations and actual consumption. Most of the front-of-package (FOP) systems that have been developed to date follow in the tradition of providing consumers with nutrition information. The use of such systems implicitly assumes that consumers are receiving appropriate nutrition information, whose impact can be enhanced by making it more prominent (i.e., putting it on the front of packages) and by delivering it more concisely. After reviewing evidence and perspectives from a wide range of disciplines, the committee came to a different conclusion.”

NTIS classifies citations into 39 subject categories. Each of these subject categories is divided into subcategories. This method provides sorting categories for both hard and soft sciences. All subject categories consist of three character codes: two numerics and one alpha character. The numeric codes represent entire categories the alpha codes are used to designate subcategories within these broad categories. The number of NTIS subcategories posted to an information product average from three to five, although there are some reports with more.

The National Technical Reports Library (NTRL) enhances accessibility to the NTIS technical reports collection. It provides access to:

- Bibliographic records of more than 2,000,000 technical reports
- Downloadable full text of 700,000 of these reports in PDF format

Subscription rates are based on institutional FTE levels.

The NTRL operates on a system interface that allows users to do queries on the large NTIS bibliographic database. The intent is to broadly expand and improve access to over 2 million bibliographic records (pre-1960 to present) and 700k full-text documents in PDF format that are directly linked to that bibliographic database.
