

U.S. Export Administration Regulations

These regulations are issued by the Bureau of Industry and Security (BIS) under laws relating to the control of certain exports, re-exports, and activities. In addition, the EAR implement antiboycott law provisions requiring regulations to prohibit specified conduct by United States persons that has the effect of furthering or supporting boycotts fostered or imposed by a country against a country friendly to United States.

The export control provisions of the EAR are intended to serve the national security, foreign policy, nonproliferation, and short supply interests of the United States and, in some cases, to carry out its international obligations. Some controls are designed to restrict access to dual use items by countries or persons that might apply such items to uses inimical to U.S. interests. The EAR also include some export controls to protect the United States from the adverse impact of the unrestricted export of commodities in short supply.

The EAR offers authoritative guidance on issues such as:

When is an export license necessary and when is it not?

How do you obtain an export license?

What policies are followed in considering license applications?

How do you know when the policies change?

What are the latest restrictions on exports to certain countries and certain types of goods and services?

Where are restrictive trade practices and boycotts prohibited?

If necessary, where can you obtain further help?

Looseleaf, CD-ROM, Online, and E-Mail Updates

Looseleaf – For $195* a year, you get the EAR Base Manual plus three bulletin updates.

CD-ROM – For $168* a year, you get four quarterly update issues. Features full search and bookmark capability to locate specific data ... eliminates time-consuming manual maintenance ... and allows you to print and download parts of the EAR as you wish.

Online – For $314 a year, you have access to new and revised regulations after their being published in the Federal Register. This Web-based service also features full search capability plus access to the Prohibited Parties Database for screening your export order prior to shipment. (Unlimited users subscription is also available.) You can order this service online at <http://bxa.fedworld.gov>.

E-mail notification of updates – For $158 per year you can have NTIS notify you by e-mail each time the EAR is updated by the Bureau of Industry and Security. This service is advised for subscribers to the CD-ROM or paper copy EAR who otherwise won't learn of changes to the EAR until the next quarterly update. (This service is already included as part of the Online subscription.)
